Westchester County Commuters | Complete Counterfeiting Outfit at Hearing on New Haven Road's Poor Service Will Tell of Marooning of Thousands.

PASSENGERS NOT TOLD OF BLOCK ON THE RAILWAY.

When Bridge Collapsed in the Bronx Trains Were Sent Out Only to Stop at Port Morris-Late Getting Home.

When the State Railroad Commission meets on Aug. 23 in this city to listen to the plants of commuters on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad as to the lessenbs of the train service since the beginning of the month, a special committee will pre-sent another phase of the corporation's lealing with the public worth attenion. This special committee grows out of the marooning of thousands of comnuters at Port Morris last night owing o the collapse of a bridge at Bedford

The bridge, it is reported variously. collapsed between 3 and 4 o'clock, anyway before 4, and the company knew that several hours must elapse before t would have a clear track, but notwithstanding it kept on selling tickets at the Grand Central Station and sending out trains. Not a word was said to passengers that might have saved them hours of valuable time and their families worry.

Told at Port Morris.

The passengers did not learn that the road was blocked until they got to One Hundred and Forty-ninth street and found themselves being shunted onto the Port Morris cut-off to the Harlem branch of the New Haven.

There, answering the demands travellers, conductors, brakemen and other employees began detailing the inormation that a bridge had fallen at to us?" welled a very angry man, and he made a pass at the conductor's jaw with all his strength. The commuter's friends caught him and led him away. It was not until after the 6.30 train had been despatched from the Grand Central station that the New Haven company thought it worth while to nform the people waiting there that if they wished to get home to any of the better go to One Hundred and Twentynith street and take the branch trains.

from the eastern side.

Throngs in Suspense.

Many persons bound for New Haven and points east had the good sense soon after they found themselves in the dump yard at Port Morris to leave the trains and make their way back to New York by trolley, where they spent the

It was reported in all stations along the road up to 8 o'clock in the evening that there had been a wreck. Wives and mothers and entire families, with the tunnel wreck in mind, thronged the waiting-rooms, imagining the most hor-rible things. Nervous women cried and begged the railroad company for news, but nothing definite was obtained until one of the marconed trains arrived at New Rochelle shortly after 8 o'clock and its passengers told the waiting throngs of women and children what the trouble was and there was no occasion for worrying.

THE WHEAT MARKET.

Further unloading caused wheat to break over a cent at the opening of the local market to-day. Corn was also lower at the start, being off 5-8 of a ent, having very fittle support from the bulls. At Chicago wheat opened weak, with the crowd nervous. Corn declined in sympathy, with the trade

Found in Cavity of Wall in Boston Physician's Office by Detectives.

PROMINENT PRACTITIONER CHARGED WITH CRIME.

Fruit Dealer Complained that Dr. Frank G. Sanft, of Roxbury, Had Passed Bogus Bills on Him-Society Shocked.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 13-Dr. Frank G. Sanft, respected physician, with a large practice, prominent socially in Rozbury, with an equally prominent wife and two handsome daughters, just budding into womanhood, stood in the prison pen in the Federal Court here to-day charged with counterfeiting. If the statements of the Secret Service agents and the Boston and Roxbury police be true, the arrest of the physician is the most important counterfell capture made in years in Massachusetts. For months counterfeit 12 bills have been in circulation in Boston and the suburbs. The police, aided by the Secret Service men, have worked hard to run down the makers of the money, but with no success.

These bills have flowed banks and many of them have been passed on the elevated railroad and the surface trolley cars. The banks made complaint, as did the railway compan-les, but suspicion was not directed to Dr. Sanft until a fruit vender reported that the physician had passed a counset on the doctor. The findings of the detectives, they declare, convinced them that the arrest of the doctor was war-
